

Sirs:

I believe that the extension of the CALEA to cover internet traffic including VOIP as well as other forms of communication is a gross invasion of human privacy. There is no reason to believe that this further allowences by the Police will not be abused, misused and otherwise bent to fit Police needs in order to prosecute persons and go upon "fishing" expedition. The privacy of a persons communications should remain so and only be allowed when strictly and expressly given permissions on a case-by-case process.
